HEAD OF HOME FOR BLIND IS CALLED BRUTE

Private Institution In New Jersey Is Investigated

Summit, N. J., Dec. 23—(AP)—In one of the big rooms of the Arthur Sunshine Home and Kindergarten for Blind Babies, a handful of state officials were called together today to sift the charges that young inmates of the institution have been subjected to cruel and unnecessary discipline.

William J. Ellis, New Jersey State Commissioner of Institutions and Agencies, and several members of his staff make up the inquiry board with J. Fred Sticker of Newark, a former Common Pleas Judge, who is a member of the home's Board of Governors.

Target of the accusations is spectated Mrs. Gladys Krauter, the superintendent. The charges include these: that she bound children's mouths with adhesive tape because they talked; that a girl had been made to lick a cake of soap; that another child had been lashed with a wet towel; that wrists were tightly bandaged; that acts normal to all children brought punishment more severe than those practiced in a reformatory.

Children Removed
In Albany, N. Y., yesterday Dr. James H. Foster, Assistant New York State Commissioner of Welfare, announced four children had been taken out of the home because of the failure of the managers to remove Mrs. Krauter.

It was four months ago that Miss Kathleen E. Hunt, a registered nurse employed at the home, resigned and put her charges in writing. Within the last week, Ellis said, Miss Edna Ennis, a teacher at the home, reported hearing from children that their wrists were tied.

The home is a private institution of the International Sunshine Society and as such requires no license from the state of New Jersey. Its inmates include children placed there by their parents or by various states in the east.

"Proud of Work"
Mrs. Sophie M. Schilling, president of the home, said yesterday "we are proud of the work that has been done," and added that the four children removed by New York authorities because of alleged cruelties had improved during their stay here.

Commissioner Ellis said he felt the criticism were "generalizations with a few isolated cases to support them."

"I didn't feel there was any proof Mrs. Krauter was a hard disciplinarian and a brute," he said.

Charles F. Bishop Enters Race for County Treasurer

Charles F. Bishop, World War veteran and bookkeeper at the Netz & Co. garage for the past twenty years, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for County Treasurer, subject to the April primaries, and his petitions are now being signed by his many friends. Charles, a native of Oregon, Ogle county, has lived practically all of his life in Dixon except for a year in the service of his country and six and a half years in the accounting department of the Pierce Arrow Motor Co. branch in Chicago, and he has many friends who will support him actively in his campaign.

TO CUT GAS PRICE

Chicago, Dec. 23—(AP)—The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) today announced that all grades of gasoline will be lowered one half cent in price on Jan. 1. The reduction is made possible by removal on that date of one half cent of the present cent and a half Federal tax on gasoline.

Olive oil keeps better on the pantry shelf than it does in the icebox.

Former Assistant Corporation
Counsel of Chicago Arrested
On Charge of Arson in Lake Co.

Chicago, Dec. 23—(AP)—Attorney Samuel E. Pincus, former Assistant Corporation Counsel of Chicago, was at liberty on bond today after his arrest on arson charges growing out of the fire that destroyed a barn leased by Lee W. Popp near Lake Zurich.

Pincus was taken into custody at his Chicago home last night by Deputy Sheriff Russell McBride of Lake County. The complaint was signed by Popp, who several days ago brought out the arrest of Arthur E. Briggs, owner of the farm on which the barn stood, his wife and Percy McAndrews.

JAPANESE ARE HAPPY: SON IS BORN TO RULERS

Crown Prince's Arrival
Occasion for Joyous Celebration

Tokyo, Dec. 23—(AP)—A child was born to the Empress of Japan today—a son destined some day to become the 125th Mikado of the world's oldest dynasty.

While in many other lands devout preparations were made to recall the birth of another infant—the Christ Child—Japan hailed with deep emotion the coming of the little princeling.

One long blast from Tokyo's sirens split the air at dawn. The city held its breath. Another blast was heard, and the Capital began a mighty celebration.

A single blast would have been cause for near mourning, as it had been at the coming of the four little girls—three still living—in the royal household.

But two meant the arrival of the long and eagerly-awaited crown prince of the island empire of nearly 100,000,000 future subjects.

First son of the five children born to their majesties, Emperor Hirohito and Empress Magako, the infant weighed seven and one-eighth pounds and was perfect in every way.

To the happy palace hastened all army of high officials and foreign diplomats—among them United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew—to extend congratulations.

ROSENWALD IS RECIPIENT OF
THREAT NOTES

Wealthy Philadelphia
Man Victim of Extortion Effort

Philadelphia, Dec. 23—(AP)—Police today arrested William Schultz, 34, in an alleged plot to extort $30,000 from Lessing J. Rosenwald, merchant and philanthropist.

Rosenwald, told the police he received a letter about ten days ago demanding money and threatening him with bodily harm if he refused to deliver it.

Detective Lieutenant Thomas McGorion said Schultz, a milk dealer, confessed sending the letter. He made the admission, they said, after they had found writing paper in his home similar to that on which the letters to Rosenwald were written.

The officers said Schultz told them he meant no harm to Rosenwald, and that he felt that if he had $30,000 he could start a pasteurization plant and make money, then pay it back.

Philadelphia, Dec. 23—(AP)—Lessing J. Rosenwald, millionaire chairman of the Board of Sears, Roebuck & Company, said today he had been threatened by a man who demanded $30,000. It was the second extortion plot against the wealthy philanthropist in recent months.

Police detained a man for questioning in the case but declined to give any details.

At his home after a conference at city hall with detectives, Rosenwald said today he received a letter demanding the money about 10 days ago.

"It demanded money and threatened me if I refused to deliver it," Rosenwald added.

"He (the writer) told me to leave it at Olney Avenue and American Street where this fellow was arrested."

Got Similar Letters

Last April, Rosenwald received similar letters and his cooperation with police in the case resulted in the arrest of Charles Weil, 26-year-old bookkeeper, who had demanded $100,000.

Weil was captured in a cigar store telephone booth while talking to Rosenwald. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to seven and a half years in the penitentiary.

Police said the man under arrest is William Schultz, 34, of this city. He was arrested near the spot designated in the letters at which the money was to be left. Police said

HOLLANDER IS CONVICTED OF REICHSTAG FIRE

Sentenced to Death:
Holland Government
Protests

Leipzig, Dec. 23—(AP)—The Supreme Court ended three months of deliberations today with the verdict that Marinus Van der Lubbe, 24, a brick mason from Holland, must die for setting fire to the Reichstag building in Berlin last February.

At the same time the court freed four Communists whom the state had held to be responsible with Van der Lubbe. Thus ended one of the most spectacular trials in German history.

The Hague, Dec. 23—(AP)—Under instructions given him some time ago, the Dutch Minister to Berlin today was making representations to the German government regarding the death sentence passed by a Supreme Court a few hours earlier against Marinus Van der Lubbe, confessed incendiary of the Reichstag building.

Although nothing official was made known, it was understood the instructions were to the effect that the death sentence should be commuted as the arson crime on which Van der Lubbe was convicted did not carry the extreme penalty under German law at the time it was committed.

The German government decreed the death sentence for persons found guilty of arson on the day following the Reichstag fire, making the law retroactive to cover the date of the crime.

Henry E. Davis,
Retired Railway
Engineer, Called

Henry E. Davis, retired Illinois Central engineer, passed away at his home, 706 Nachusa avenue last night at 11:30 o'clock. His death resulting from a lingering illness with complications. Funeral services will be conducted from the home Sunday afternoon, Rev. Gilbert Stansell, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating and with interment in Oakwood. The obituary will be published later.

Three sons and two daughters survive as follows: Roy, Bert and Edward of Chicago and Mrs. Arthur Whitebread and Mrs. Jesse Risley of this city. Mrs. Davis preceded her husband in death, July 4, 1932. Mr. Davis was for many years engineer on the switch engine in the local Illinois Central yards until his retirement.

ADMIRAL BYRD
FLEW OVER ROSS
SEA YESTERDAY

Discovers Supposedly Impenetrable Ice Pack
Thin Ice

Aboard Byrd Flagship, Antarctica, Dec. 23—(AP)—(By Mackay Radio)—A flight over the uncharted vastness of the Ross Sea has convinced Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd that he will be able to push his ship much farther toward Little America than he first expected.

When his flagship, ploughing along the 150th Meridian, encountered what seemed to be an impenetrable ice pack, the Admiral ordered the ship back to open water, lowered his huge seaplane over the side and took off yesterday in a surprise flight over the unknown spaces lying ahead.

He returned four hours later with the report that there was no heavy ice pack ahead, contrary to the usual belief. There was supposed to be an impenetrable pack extending far across Ross Sea, backed by a mass of land, somewhat of an archipelago. After what he observed on his flight, however, Admiral Byrd was "not so sure of this."

Ran Out of Gas
"It wouldn't surprise me if open sea existed clear to the continental limits that we explored on our flights eastward of Little America in 1929 and 1930," the explorer said. "To the limit of vision open water could be seen and the pack we saw was all young, shallow, pancake ice. It may be that further exploration of this vicinity would have the effect of extending the known limits of the Ross Sea. I think we might have solved the thing if we had not run out of gas and had to turn back."

As a result of yesterday's flight, Byrd will be able to push on by ship, although eventually he will be stopped by the ice now forming. Then he plans to go on to his base at Little America by plane from where he will make further explorations.

Admiral Byrd was accompanied on his flight by Harold I. June, chief pilot; William Bowlin, relief pilot; J. A. Peller, aerial mapper; and Carl O. Petersen, radio operator.

An air of expectancy and devotion was over Bethlehem, where Christ was born. Devout pilgrims awaited the hour for traditional ritual to commence.

Pope Pius XI called upon the Christian family firstly to pray, secondly to pray, thirdly to continue to pray. It was his annual Christmas message to the College of Cardinals.

RECEIVERS FOR MID WEST WILL BE NEXT TARGET

Chicago Attorney to Attempt to Have Them Ousted

Chicago, Dec. 23—(AP)—Victorious in his first assault against the receiverships of the Insull utilities, Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson, former Corporation Counsel, today was training his guns on the Middle West Utilities Company on the ground that collusion marked the naming of receivers.

In Federal District court yesterday Judge Evan A. Evans upheld Ettelson's charge that collusion dominated the receivership of the $238,000,000 Insull Utility Investments, Inc.

At his home at Green Lake, Wis., Ettelson said the decision "speaks for itself and that beyond proceeding against the Middle West Utilities, parent holding concern on the one two billion dollar utilities empire, he had nothing to say."

The immediate issue before the court was Ettelson's objections to the payment of fees to Calvin Pentress, receiver of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and in upholding Ettelson, Judge Evans found that collusion was practiced in bringing about the receivership.

In event the attorney ultimately secures an annulment of all Insull receiverships the effect would be unique in that it would restore the fugitive Samuel Insull, Sr., as chairman of the board of Middle West Utilities, which would revert to its former legal status.

STREATOR BANK
ROBBED GIVEN
YEAR TO LIFE

Conviction Came Day
After Two Companions Met Death

Ottawa, Ill., Dec. 23—(AP)—A vacant cell in the state penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., today awaited Frank Zimmerman, convicted by a Circuit Court jury of participation in the $52,000 robbery of the Union National Bank of Streator, Ill., and sentenced to from one year to life.

The verdict was returned last night after the jury had been out 23 hours. Sentence was passed at once by Judge Robert Larkin and Sheriff E. J. Welter said he would take Zimmerman to Joliet today.

The shooting in Chicago of two other suspects in the robbery, Lewis Katzewitz and Charles Taltelbaum, alias Tilden, authorities once had them in jail, but they were released by accomplices in the sensational delivery of the LaSalle county jail in 1932.

In addition to Zimmerman, five other men have been sentenced in connection with the robbery and one, Jacob Pierson, alias Cohn, who escaped from jail with Katzewitz and Tilden, is still at liberty.

New York, Dec. 23—(AP)—Capt. George R. Pond, aviator who had been reported missing since last Saturday, returned last night to his home in Woodhaven, Queens.

The aviator, who is planning a New-York-to-Rome flight with Cesare Sabelli, said he had been visiting friends upstate.

If weather conditions are favorable, the fliers plan to leave for Rome at dawn tomorrow from Floyd Bennett Field, in Sabelli's plane, "Leonardo da Vinci."

Council of Merchants Plans To Carry Sales Tax Attack Up To United States Supreme Court

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 23—(AP)—The legal attack against the two per cent sales tax probably will be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States on an appeal, R. Irving Winter of Alton, president of the Council of Illinois Merchants, said today.

A motion for a rehearing will be filed with the Illinois Supreme Court, he added.

Improvement of Big Tract Financed
Through CWA

Mayor George C. Dixon today made the following announcement of a great Christmas present for the city of Dixon, which is self-explanatory:

"Reynolds Athletic Field today comes to the city of Dixon as a perpetual memorial to Horace G. Reynolds, founder of the Reynolds Wire Co. This property is given to Dixon by the generosity of Lucille Reynolds Ralston and John G. Ralston of Dixon and Pauline Reynolds Whitthorne (formerly Mrs. Douglas G. Harvey) of New York, through the channel of the Reynolds Wire Co."

"No words can estimate the value of the gift to the people of Dixon of the tract of land embracing twenty-four lots, covering an area 660 feet long by 340 feet wide at Sheridan Avenue and Second street, which Mr. and Mrs. Ralston and Mrs. Whitthorne have agreed to purchase and convey to the city to be converted into a municipal baseball and football field and playground."

"While the details of this splendid gift were being planned by these public-spirited donors, who always give first consideration to the welfare of our city, I filed with the Civil Works Administration an application for sufficient funds to pay the estimated amount of the labor required to grade the tract and prepare the baseball diamonds, football grounds, playgrounds and parking space, and to build the driveways and nearby streets."

"$11,105.50 has been allotted to the City of Dixon by the federal authorities for labor and the estimated cost of the bleachers and other improvements on the tract is about $3,600."

"Bleachers and all necessary facilities for northern Illinois' most modern public recreation center will be provided. The grounds will be appropriately landscaped and the project includes laying a first class macadam drive entirely surrounding the field, and macadamizing all the streets leading from the pavements to the field, without any expense to the abutting property owners."

To Improve Streets

"The streets to be improved are: Second street from Sherman Ave.; and Sheridan Ave. from both First and Third streets to the field; also Third street from Sheridan to Custer avenue; Custer avenue from Third street to First street; and First street from Custer avenue to Sherman avenue—thereby improving all surrounding streets to afford convenience to the traffic which will pass through that section of the City as a result of this extensive development."

"Recent efforts of the Council to provide for a West End park and athletic field were abandoned because of objections of some property owners to the proposed assessment. Mr. and Mrs. Ralston and Mrs. Whitthorne, realizing the advantages to the entire community and the special value to the west section of the city, now demonstrate their loyalty to Dixon, and their generosity will be appreciated by the people more than they anticipate, and the benefits will be everlasting."

"Our community is a favored one because these people are interested in Dixon."

"Construction work on the Reynolds Athletic Field probably will commence on Tuesday morning, December 26."

In 1930 there were 59,872 Chinese men in the United and 15, 152 Chinese women.

shifting of the Illinois state tax burden to the shoulders of the merchants of the state is an injustice," Winter said.

The Council of Illinois Merchants was organized to oppose sales tax legislation.

Justice Louis R. Herrick of Farmer City, one of the three new members of the court, wrote the unanimous opinion which held the sales tax constitutional yesterday.

J. Withers' first bride was Inez Withers, mother of his 9-year-old son. He was divorced in 1931 by Loretta Young, with whom he eloped the previous year, when Loretta was only 17.

Great Union Railroad Station for Chicago Proposed

Chicago, Dec. 23—(AP)—A consolidated passenger terminal on Chicago's lake front east of Michigan Boulevard at Randolph street to serve eighteen railroads, is proposed in a report by a city council committee for submission to the lines that would be affected. The report, made public yesterday, proposes the abandonment of the Grand Central station, the La Salle street station, the Dearborn station and the present Illinois Central terminal near Roosevelt Road. Seventeen railroads now running into these four stations, would use the new terminal. In addition, the Chicago & Alton, now using the Union station, would be routed into the proposed new terminal.

The cost of the project was estimated at $19,000,000.

Alderman Oscar P. Nelson, chairman of the committee, said the council would appeal to government officials for adoption of the plan if the railroads do not approve of the proposal.

Widow of Garrett Def. Kinney Given $39,198 Insurance

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 23—(AP)—Mrs. Mae C. Kinney has been granted $39,198.21 insurance held by her husband, the late Garrett DeForest Kinney, former State Director of Finance, who committed suicide last August.

The state of Illinois had laid claim to the money on the grounds that Kinney's accounts were nearly $174,000 short. Master-in-Chancery Claude U. Stone recommended the insurance be paid Mrs. Kinney and the Circuit Court so ordered.

The insurance was with the Peoria Life Insurance Company, since placed in receivership.

Mrs. Kinney's attorneys insisted that the money be held in the trust of the insurance company, or of a bank affiliated with the company and since closed.

"Noah of Pacific Northwest Warns of Coming Floods—Seattle, Wash., Dec. 23—(AP)—Pacific northwest residents looked askance today at the prophecy of William Greenwood, a famous "Noah" of the region, that the present floods were only a warning of the one that would engulf the earth four years hence.

In nearly every section they saw unprecedented high waters, with the week's known storm toll at 12 lives, and with the losses in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. More than 5,000 persons were homeless.

"The people need not be afraid of the existing flood conditions," said Greenwood, the builder and lone occupant of an ark at Olympia, Wash., whose strange craft was floated by night tides yesterday for the first time. "This is only a warning."

Insull Appeals to High State Council—Athens, Greece, Dec. 23—(AP)—Samuel Insull, former American utilities operator, today filed an appeal with the Supreme State Council against the government's declaration that he must leave Greece by Jan. 31.

Terse Items Of News Gathered In Dixon During Day

Wrist watches and other articles from the stock taken. The robbery was discovered when the store opened this morning and was immediately reported to the police. Entrance was gained by tearing a screen from a door in the rear, where a glass was broken and the lock on the door released from the inside.

LETTER CENSORED

William B. Ruch of this city is in receipt of a letter from his aged mother who resides in Pomerania province, Germany, which was opened and censored before being permitted to leave that country. He recently received a letter from a sister residing in Berlin and in both communications a general improvement in conditions in Germany was noted and unemployment was said to be on the decrease.

INJURED IN CRASH

Jacob Zuend and son Raymond, 610 Park Row, were badly cut and bruised in an accident which occurred at the intersection of West Morgan street and Squires avenue yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Both were riding on a motorcycle which collided with an automobile driven by L. P. Praetter of this city. Mr. Zuend sustained deep lacerations of the right leg and minor cuts and bruises while the son received cuts about the head and bruises about the body. Both were removed to the Katherine Shaw Betha Hospital.

EMPLOYMENT OFFICE

The federal re-employment office at the city hall will be closed Sunday and Monday for the Christmas holidays. The offices will reopen Tuesday morning and a new schedule of hours will be observed. Registration will be received between the hours of 9 and 11 o'clock in the mornings only for all unemployed of Lee county. Several men and women have been furnished employment throughout the county as the result of the notice published a few days ago in which citizens having any form of work to do were urged to make application at the registration office.

AID GOODFELLOWS

Members of the Goodfellow Club were today busy packing boxes of Christmas gifts for needy children of the city and community, which will be distributed tomorrow by members of the DeMolay. The boxes contain a bit of fruit, some candy, nuts, etc. and a toy or doll. Since Friday the O. E. S. Taylor Club contributed $3.30 to the fund. Mrs. Walter Mon donated a sack of walnuts, Mrs. Miles McLane a basket of fruit, James Cleland 40 pounds of candy, Eichler Bros. a quantity of toys. County Treasurer Sterling Schrock contributed $5 and R. H. Campbell $2.

GIVEN HIGH HONOR

Walter B. Saunders, son-in-law of Mrs. Alice Beede of this city, has been the recipient of an outstanding honor in the award of the James Lauri prize by the American Society of Civil Engineers for his paper and work on the LaPlata pipe line, carrying water from the high Andes mountains of South America for the power plant in Potrerillos, Chile, a distance of 50 miles. His paper was published in both the monthly and yearly magazine of the American Society of Civil Engineers. The James Lauri prize has been awarded only 20 times since 1850, and is considered a very great honor. Mr. Saunders has been invited to come to New York to receive the honor at the annual dinner of the society, January 17.

American Steamer Rescues Jap Crew From Sinking Ship

Dutch Harbor, Alaska, Dec. 23—(AP)—Making hurried rescues from the sinking Japanese freighter Heivel Maru No. 12 after colliding with the American steamer Iowa was inbound today to Hakodate, Japan, messages intercepted here by the naval radio disclosed.

No details of the crash other than that it occurred yesterday morning about 8 A. M. were received here.

The Heivel Maru is listed in Lloyd's as a steel steamer of 5,460 gross tons, built in Japan in 1920. It was owned by the Kabafuto Kisen line.

PHILADELPHIA'S STRIKE STATUS IS COMPLICATED

Conflicting Claims Made by Speakers for Both Sides

Philadelphia, Dec. 23—(AP)—A rapid succession of changes left Philadelphia's transportation and delivery strike complicated today with union leaders insisting the tie-up would be virtually complete before nightfall.

Bakery wagon drivers withdrew from the strike last night after the National Labor Board granted them pay increases and the right to unionize.

Earlier, the Railway Express Drivers' Union explained its members would take no part in the strike because of existing contracts with their employers.

Called in sympathy with the fight of union taxicab drivers against the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, operator of three of the city's largest taxicab fleets, the general strike started Thursday night and leaders said more than 20,000 men were affected and that 15,000 were off duty yesterday. The figures were disputed as too high.

Department stores said their drivers, not fully organized, would not be affected and that Christmas deliveries would be made.

man families. Red-clad Santa Claus plowed through northland snows on his way to everywhere. There is a possibility of a white Christmas in some sections where today it is green.

Colorado and Utah silver miners carried one celebration into another and danced and sang for the President's silver program and danced and sang for the Yule joy. The President will read Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" to four generations of the Roosevelt family and that will be the White House Christmas Day highlight.

Three generations of Coolidges will celebrate at Plainville, Conn. Youngest celebrant, Cynthia, daughter of John and Florence Trumbull Coolidge, granddaughter of the late Calvin Coolidge whose widow will be present.

Is Happier Season—Mary Pickford ordered a turkey sent to her dressing room where she'll be dressing for a five-day in a New York theater and she determined to be happy in face of the memory of Pickfair Yule dinners with Douglas and Douglas, Jr., and the latter's wife and all the people who used to be together.

Legal wire will accompany the turkey in hotels. The grand old dependable organizations of good will to men—the Salvation Army, and others—will have food on the tables of all the poor that can be reached. In Los Angeles alone more than 200,000 free dinners will be provided by various agencies.

One New York newspaper remarked: "x x x The Yule season of 1933 is a vastly happier one than that of 1932."

Bethlehem Crowded With Devout Today

Bethlehem, Dec. 23—(AP)—An air of fervent expectancy—devotion mingled with curiosity—gripped today the pilgrims already here for Christmas celebrations which will begin at midnight Sunday.

The intervening time is being spent by devout worshippers and mere sightseers alike in visiting the traditional sites of events connected with the Nativity.

It will be Christmas to all races and denominations here—Arabs and Jews manifesting the same outward interest as they pass through the streets of the Holy City enriching local and other traders by buying mementos of the great annual commemoration.

CHICAGO DRIVER HELD FOR DEATH OF TWO MEN

Victims Were Assistant Officer Right Overtaken Car

Chicago, Dec. 23—(AP)—A Coroner's jury today recommended that Ernest E. Schneider, 45, driver of a car which early this morning ran down and killed two men who were assisting another motorist, be held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter.

Schneider, upon advice of his attorney, refused to testify at the inquest. Police told the jury that Schneider was intoxicated at the time of the accident.

The widows of the two victims were questioned by the Deputy Coroner. They were Mrs. Rose Cohen, widow of Nathan Cohen, a taxicab driver, and Mrs. Frances Kochanek, whose husband, John, was a hotel waiter.

Cohen and Kochanek had got out of their own automobiles to assist Thomas C. Dunlavy, a Lincoln Park Policeman, in righting an automobile which had been overturned in a collision. They were hit by Schneider's car and pinned to the overturned machine.

"The REST IS CALVARY!"
By George E. Phair

HUMBLE of heart, upon this blessed day
The world pays homage to the Prince of Peace.
One day alone the wretched
warring cease.
The grisly schemes of state
are laid away.
Mankind emerges from the common clay.

A little while to lift His thorny crown.

To ease the cross that bears His shoulders down,
And then the morrow comes, a rack
of gray.

Strife rears its head again by land and sea.

The Star of Bethlehem is blotted out.

The dogs of war resume their snarling rout.

One day of grace—the rest is Calvary.

And what more blessed morn than this to pray

That life might be an endless
Christmas Day?

Students Home
For Christmas

All universities and colleges and schools give vacations at the Yuletide and Dixon's quota of young folks are already home or coming for the Christmas season, with its dances and dinners and generally happy time. Among those noted are:

Chandler Sterling from Nasho-
tah Seminary, Nashotah, Wis.; Robert Sterling of Iowa State University; Bob Eno, Bill Smith and Howard Quick, Beloit College; Miss
Anne Davies, Rockford College;

University of Missouri at Columbia; and Douglas Shaw is home from Center College, at Danville, Ky.

Paul Crews is home to spend the holidays with his mother and brothers. He is a student at the University of Iowa at Iowa City.

Three Dixon students at the University of Notre Dame arrived on Thursday for the Christmas holiday period which they will spend at home. They are James E. Bales, 915 Second street, a sophomore in the college of commerce; Martin R.
Cahill, 715 Peoria avenue, a senior in the college of commerce; and Joseph P. Judge, 216 East Seventh street, a junior in the college of law. All are graduates of the Dixon high school.

Elks' Party on
New Year's Eve

Dick Shelton's original Illinois singing band, which will appear at the Dixon Elks New Year's eve is composed of an unusual group of musicians. Under the baton of the youthful campus maestro, Dick Shelton, leader and featured saxophonist, this band has for two seasons been a favorite on the University of Illinois campus.

This orchestra has been heard over the Columbia Broadcasting System many times, and is now broadcasting over the Illinois University station WILL.

The Elks party will start at 11
P. M. and will be semi-formal, following open house at the club all evening.

Annual Party on Evening Dec. 29th

The Dixon Christmas Club will give their annual Christmas party on the evening of Friday, Dec. 29, at the Masonic Temple. The following committee is in charge:
Mrs. Ben T. Shaw, chairman; Mrs.
Lloyd Davies, Mrs. W. J. Niebergall.

This will be one of the outstanding parties of the Christmas season and no doubt the attendance will be large. Special effort will be made to make it most enjoyable to all attending. The patronesses for the affair will be—Mrs. I. S.
Griffith of Amboy; Mrs. F. X.
Newcomer, Mrs. E. D. Alexander,
Mrs. S. Standfield, Mrs. John Ralston, Mrs. E. E. Shaw, Dixon; Mrs.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them and said . . . Behold, I bring you tidings of great joy, for unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior. And this shall be a sign unto you:

Ye shall find the baby wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. And . . . the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem and see this thing which has come to pass . . . And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

Dixon Woman Won Endorsement

Mrs. E. L. Murray, Dixon, has just been awarded a Certificate of Recipe Endorsement by Better Homes & Gardens for her recipe,
"Salad Dressing".

This certificate, which brings national recognition to Mrs. Murray, is given by Better Homes & Gardens only to distinguished recipes which pass its testing kitchen's tests for dependability, excellence of taste, and family usefulness.

In addition to the signed certificate, Mrs. Murray also received six copies of her endorsed recipe, each bearing the Better Homes & Gardens stamp of recipe endorsement, which she can give to her friends.

In awarding these certificates, it is the magazine's aim to provide proper recognition for the creative work done by women in their own kitchens, and also to raise the standard of accuracy and dependability of recipes as a whole. No other magazine or institution gives this personal recognition and service to its subscribers.

Mrs. Murray's endorsed recipe follows:

Salad Dressing

4 eggs (beaten well)

1-2 cupful of sugar

3 tablespoons of prepared mustard

1-2 cupful of cream

1 cupful of vinegar and water
(half and half)

1 tablespoon of butter

Combine the ingredients except vinegar and water, adding last.
Cook over boiling water until thick.

For fruit salads use less vinegar.
The juice of 1-2 lemons may be used in place of vinegar.

WILL CLOSE CHRISTMAS DAY UNTIL 8 P. M.

It is well that once a year comes the Christmas season when our perplexities, worries, fears are set aside while man expresses to his neighbor the spirit of

"Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men."

Strife and selfishness, greed and avarice, must give way to the Christmas spirit.

Sixty-three times has Christmas come and gone since the founding of the Beier Bakery in 1869. This sixty-fourth time we extend to our customers a Happy and—with special emphasis—a Prosperous New Year.

In the Coming Year you can still demand on the

ASSUREDLY THERE IS A SANTA CLAUS.

Before the year 1914 the nations of the world had some difficulty in assuring themselves that there actually was a Santa Claus. At that time the United States was a debt-ridden nation and owed the rest of the world around 5 billion dollars, so they had no particular reason to look this way for proof of Saint Nick's existence.

But a review of the financial situation as it stands at present would indicate that the nations have found him. Today American investments abroad, including the war debts, stand at about 28 billions. Of the investments which do not include war debts, we have about 5 billions in Europe, 6 billions in Latin-American countries and about 4 1/2 billions in Canada.

Including the defaulted war debts, the world's total defaulted bonded indebtedness is about 46 billion dollars. The obligations included in that figure were incurred by twenty-five nations and more than 100 cities and provinces.

With the return of better times, some of these debts may be funded. In regard to many of them, however, there seems to be occasion for gloom. Especially is there reason for gloom when a prominent Frenchman puts forth the theory that it is a healthful sign when a nation repudiates its debts about once every century.

LIGHT, LATEST SYMBOL OF A CHANGING ERA.

This seems to be a day in which nearly all the old certainties are getting wobbly on their bases.

So far this year we have been trying to get inured to the idea that the things we used to be sure of in economics and politics are only partly true. Now, just to symbolize the perplexity of the era, comes the report that the last certainty of science likewise has gone by the board.

The famous Michelson speed-of-light measurements have been finished at Pasadena, Calif., by two scientists who have been working on them ever since Professor Michelson's death in 1931; and these men have made the amazing discovery that the speed of light is not constant, but fluctuates.

Now the interesting thing about this is that modern physics has considered the velocity of light about the only thing in the universe which never changes. Even Einstein's relativity theory assumes that this speed is a factor which is absolute.

But the painstaking experiments at Pasadena have shown variations ranging through a margin of some 12 miles a second—and the lone certainty in modern physics is a certainty no longer.

Most of us, of course, not being physicists and neither understanding nor caring very much about such things, will live out our lives quite unworried by this discovery.

And yet the thing has an aptness, a peculiar and ironic timeliness, that makes it stand as an illustration of the perplexities of our times in all walks of life.

Ever since the stock market crash of 1929 we have been discovering that most of the old rules and standards by which we made our society work are not functioning any more. The framework of modern society has become enormously complex and involved; and most of our troubles arise from the fact that we have no blueprints showing us how the thing can be fitted together and made to work smoothly.

Russia is trying one stunt, Germany another, England another, and America still another. All of us are experimenting, and we are doing so because we have discovered suddenly that there are no hard and fast rules about it. There are no certainties in this modern world—or, if there are, we haven't found them.

Now comes this upsetting of the last scientific constant, to complete the story. It is a fitting symbol of an era that has to figure everything out anew.

THE 22nd AMENDMENT.

It is worth noticing that the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution now has been ratified by more than half of the required number of states, to insure its adoption. When the Maine legislature approved the amendment and sent it to Gov. Louis J. Brann for his signature, 19 states had put their approval on it.

Here is an issue which the press of more immediate considerations should not cause us to forget. The NRA codes, to be sure, pretty largely have abolished child labor; but the job is only temporary, and it is incidental to the accomplishment of other ends.

By putting the amendment in the constitution, the exploitation of child labor, with all the costly abuses that accompany it, would be outlawed for good.

Whether one drinks sitting or standing is not going to be nearly so much a practical issue as whether the driver approaching you is going to take his side of the road or both sides.

Old Santa Claus looked over his sled and with a friendly smile, he said, "You Tinymites have done a very wondrous job this year."

"Why, since the day you came to me, you've been as busy as could be. I know your help will fill a lot of little folks with cheer."

"You've painted dolls and tested toys, and you have made a lot of noise by playing on big drums and horns, but that was quite all right."

"I'm positive the horns will blow and that is what I wished to know. I well recall the two girls thought your music was a fright."

"I'll say we did," cried Doty. "Gee, their playing almost deafened me. But, that's all over now. We have really had a lot of fun."

"As far as I can see, we are through, and everything is set for you." "You are right," exclaimed kind Santa. "There is nothing to be done."

"Real shortly I must say good-bye, and sail away up in the sky."

While I am gone you Tinymites can play with my wee elves.

"If you get hungry, just say so. Then to my pantry you can go. You will find a lot of tasty things to eat. Just help yourselves."

Then Santa's reindeers fussed a bit. Said Scouty, "They all know that it is time for them to go. Hey, Santa, climb into your seat!"

"You'll have a dandy ride tonight because the moon is nice and bright. Be sure and tuck your blanket in, so you don't freeze your feet."

Old Santa Claus quickly climbed aboard. "Well, lads, I'm off," he loudly roared. And then he shouted, "Giddyap!" His reindeers left the ground.

The Tinymites all waved good-bye as Santa's sleigh skimmed across the sky. "Just think!" exclaimed wee Duncy. "For the chimney tops he's bound."

THE WITCHING HOUR

By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

'Tis my belief that no hour is quite so full of sweet bewitchment as Christmas Eve. For me all the glad greeting of Christmas morning can never equal the sly, secret joy of the evening before. It is an hour of magic, when the earth around us, the sky above us, and the heart within us is most holy and happy.

If you would kindle the dying embers of your faith, stand for a moment on Christmas Eve in the crowded corner of some restless city street, and watch the faces that go by. Full of anxiety many of them will be, but it is anxiety for the happiness of others. For a brief time that throng is moved by the spirit of giving instead of getting, and their faces cannot hide the wonder of it.

Some there are half ashamed of their selfishness, who try to look self-possessed as if it were all a kind of childish game of make-believe. But even their smile betrays a wistfulness, a longing to be free, if only for an hour, from the tyranny of a wisdom that is not wise. They want to escape into the lovely land where what ought to be true is true, and fear and sorrow are no more.

If you follow them home you will see them tiptoe along the hall, as if hiding some guilty secret, while eager hands are tugging at their hearts with all the pull of playtime. Grave men and women otherwise sensible will creep up the stairs at midnight, with elongated bundles in their arms, listening at bedroom doors, while little folk dream of the impossible things that love can do.

It is the one magical hour of the heavy-footed year—let it have its way with you, friend! If it makes you foolish, aye, 'tis then you are most wise, if you can forget your sad wisdom that is so foolish, so dry and hard, so weary and heavy laden.

God be thanked for an eerie hour, mystical and mellow, made holy with memories of days that come not back, and happy with the tenderness of Him who shakes the poison out of all our wild flowers.

CHRISTMAS

Although there has always been considerable difference of opinion as to the exact date of Christ's birth, owing to lack of authentic historical data, since the dawn of Christianity people have celebrated the birthday of Christ in ever-growing numbers. Some churches, in the early days of Christianity, observed the event in December, others in January or April. But this and other questions relative to the personal Christ, do not lessen the value of the rules and teachings accredited to Him.

The tenets of Christians, although in detail they sum up to several, may be condensed into one. This is the Golden Rule, and it embraces all that makes for peace on earth and good will toward men. "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you," may be stated in many ways, but, however it is said, it is the most logical plan possible to bring about good feeling and happiness to mankind.

Greedy men and women would not steal from their neighbors if they treated others as they themselves wish to be treated. Men and women would not be in want, because none would persecute them. Children would not grow to adult life with impaired health, because their tender years would be happy and fat ones. All would trust their neighbors if all practiced the Golden Rule of Life.

This present season is one of festivals, collective and private. Gifts are exchanged; greetings are voiced and written. Everyone's heart grows just a little softer; everyone's thoughts are a little brighter and turn a bit more toward helping a neighbor. It is a season for rejoicing in the fact that long ago a plan for living was formulated, a plan complete and perfect.

It is impossible to imagine the vast benefits to be derived for mankind if all men would follow the marked course to social harmony. "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you." Nothing else is needed. This Rule contradicts no truth of Nature. It fits in perfectly with man's development of science. It refutes nothing which has been a boon to mankind, but adds to all those things which have blessed terrestrial beings.

RHEUMATIC FEVER

Rheumatic fever, or more strictly speaking, rheumatic heart disease, still represents one of the most important of the infectious conditions to which young people are subject.

Despite a great deal of work, we are still without that fundamental knowledge which is essential to an adequate control of the disease.

A fact of perhaps more than common significance is that rheumatic fever is very rare in the tropics and much less common in the warm portions of the mid-temperature zones than in the cooler portions.

This observation has suggested the possible wisdom of transferring children with a history of rheumatic fever from the colder climates to the warmer zones until past the age of puberty the impression being general that the tendency to rheumatic fever begins to diminish at this age.

Another fact of significance is the average age of children at the onset of the disease. In several studies it has been found that the average age at which the original attack of rheumatic fever takes place is within the range of from 1 to 10 years.

This appears to be what might be called the susceptible period and children in this age group should be accorded special attention. It also appears that rheumatic fever, so to say, runs in families.

There is a seasonal factor which also demands attention. Rheumatic fever attacks are more common in the colder months than during the summer.

The relationship of nose and throat infections and of colds to attacks of rheumatic fever appears to be established. It is the opinion of a number of authorities that rheumatic children should be studied carefully and that when found infected, the tonsils should be removed.

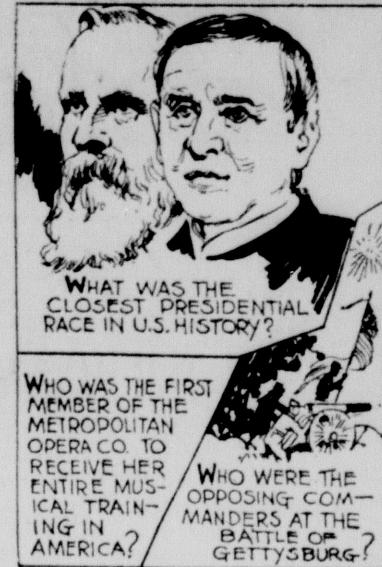

When colds develop they should be treated promptly.

MACK PREDICTS GOOD TEAM FOR PHILADELPHIANS

Veteran Manager Is Celebrating 71st Birthday Today

Philadelphia, Dec. 23 —(AP)— Connie Mack, grand old man of baseball, celebrated his 71st birthday today with his mind still on the player's dugout—not the fire-side.

Full of plans for next year, the man who turned a white elephant into a championship baseball machine—the Philadelphia Athletics—has no thought of retiring, although his allotted span of life was up a year ago.

Characteristic of his frame of mind, Connie planned to take his first airplane flight today, a sight-seeing spin over the city, accompanied by his wife and daughter. "I'll never retire," he said, "I'll continue managing as long as I feel I can help my players."

In Game 50 Years
It's more than 50 years since, as Cornelius McGillicuddy, he entered organized baseball in New England and he has been making diamond history ever since. Today, he faces as tough a task as any in his career—the rebuilding of his team, necessitated by five sensational player sales now only a few days old.

Two of the deals lost him his great catcher, Mickey Cochrane who went to Detroit, as player-manager and Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove, star left-handed pitcher, sold to Boston's Red Sox. For the first time in his career, Mack says, he starts a season without a southpaw on his hurling staff, but he is undaunted.

Predicts Good Team
"We will have a good team next year," he says. "Our pitchers are young, but I expect Merritt (Sugar) Cain, Johnny Marcum, Tim Lincecum, Roy Mahaffey and the youngsters to win games. They will realize there is no Lefty Grove around to help them and they will have to bear down in the pinches instead of looking to the bull pen for relief."

For 32 of his 40 years as a manager, Mack has been pilot of the Athletics and in that time he won five world championships and nine American League pennants.

He was born in East Brookfield, Mass., beating Santa Claus to that little factory town by just two days.

BITS ABOUT BOWLING
BY JIMMY DONOHUE
NEA Service Sports Writer
One fault of many bowlers is too full a swing in delivering the ball. This not only puts excess speed on the ball, but causes it to lose a lot of "english" when it hits the alley.

In releasing the ball, there should be a snap of the wrist, though it is not apparent because of the follow through of the arm. Good bowlers drop the ball on the alley not more than three or four feet in front of the foul line. This gives the ball plenty of time to take the stuff put on it by a turning wrist. It does not lose anything when coming into contact with the boards.

A high stance is conducive to a full swing. Come into a half crouch, just before reaching the foul line and your ball will be delivered properly.

First Queen to Use Carpets
The first English queen to cover her palace floor with carpet was Elizabeth, but a Spanish bishop was the first man in Europe known to have enjoyed carpeted floors. This was in 1255.

Our First Resolution
If it weren't for you, friends and patrons, this space wouldn't have our name at the bottom, so thank you for your favor, and rest assured that we will do our best to make the coming year more enjoyable and profitable than ever to you.

FEW CHANGES IN NEW YORK MAJOR LEAGUE OUTFITS

However Yankees and Dodgers are Both Seeking Trades

New York, Dec. 23 —(AP)— in a baseball off-season marked by an unprecedented turn-over in players, metropolitan New York's three major league representatives have remained conspicuously aloof from the ivory markets, unable or unwilling to buy or sell.

For Bill Terry's New York Giants there is an adequate excuse. Custom, as well as common sense, says there small need for extensive alterations in a world championship club, especially when it's as young an outfit as that swept through the National League last summer and then beat the Washington Senators in the world series.

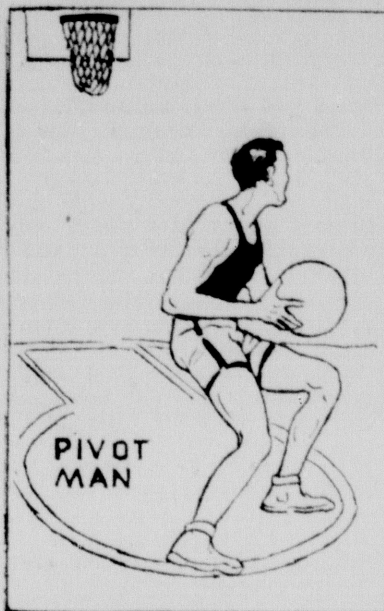

Neither the New York Yankees nor the Brooklyn Dodgers, however, have any such reason for standing pat. Both Joe McCarthy of the Yankees and Max Carey of the Dodgers are eager to bolster the weak spots which developed during the 1933 campaign, but neither has been able to swing a single player deal since the close of the season.

Giants Better Reserves
The Giants have bolstered their infield reserves by the trade which sent Glenn Spencer, right handed pitcher to Cincinnati for the veteran George Grantham. In his 12 years with the Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and the Reds, Grantham has played first, second and third base. Pittsburgh even used him in the outfield in a few games in 1929. From the minors the Giants have recalled or purchased a dozen or so players including Presco Thompson, former big league second baseman. Hank Leiber, hard-hitting outfielder, also will be back for another trial.

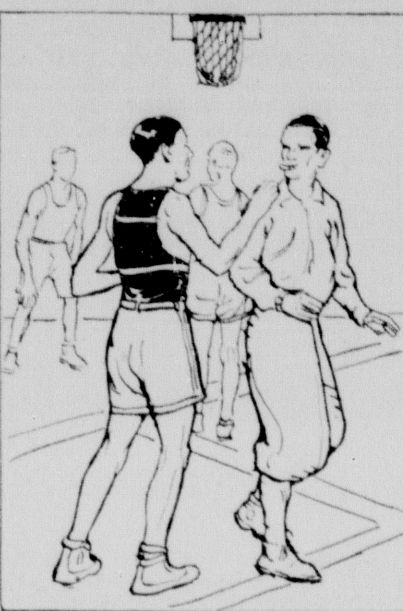

Yanks Seek Help
McCarthy's chief concern when the Yankees settle into training will be the rebuilding of his infield and it looks now as if "Marse Joe" will have to find his replacements from among the farm-hands he recalled from Newark of the International League.

Although Yankee officials have denied that unconditional releases were handed to Herb Pennock and Joe Sewell during the Chicago meetings, there seems no doubt

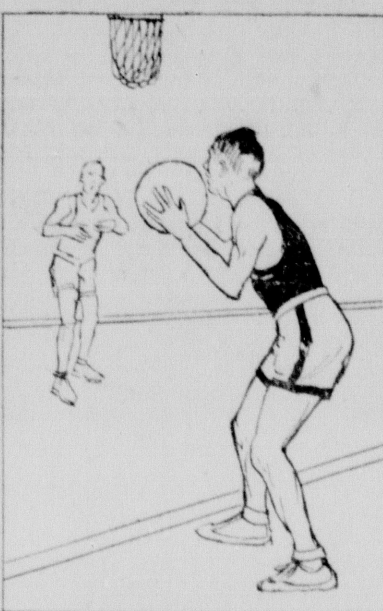

Three Rules That Change Cage Game

The new pivot rule states a player shall not hold the ball for more than three seconds in his free throw lane . . . he must get it outside the lane within that time or lose possession.

A player may not re-enter the game as a substitute after leaving three times . . . whereas he was permitted to re-enter only once after leaving the game under the old rules.

All out-of-bounds balls must be handled in the front court . . . to curb the "quick pass-in" plays from out-of-bounds and increase the number of set plays used by offense.

that both will go. Lyn Lary and Doc Farrell, infielders, also are reported on the block.

"Hungry Lou" Gehrig, of course, will be back at his customary first base post, but otherwise the Yankee inner works are unsettled. If Don Heffner, purchased from Baltimore, can make the grade at second base, Tony Lazzeri may be shifted to third. Either Frank Crosetti or Bob Rolfe, recalled from Newark, probably will get the call at shortstop. Rolfe has been pronounced ready for the big leagues, a clever fielder and a hard-timely hitter.

Dodgers Unchanged
Except for Van Mungo and Al Lopez, virtually every other member of the Brooklyn Dodger cast has been declared trading material but there have been few offers and no takers. Carey has snared a few young pitchers of whom Leslie Murns of St. Paul looks like the best bet, and a few infielders and outfielders from the minors but, barring future deals, the Dodgers probably will line up much as they did last season. Mungo, Ray Benze, Elmer Beck and Owen A. Carroll probably will be the "big four" of the pitching staff unless Murns or Charley Perkins, clever southpaw, can break through to win a starting berth.

MANUSCRIPT OF PART OF BIBLE SOLD BY RUSSIA

Story of Theft of Codex Sinaiticus Is Re-
told Today

London, Dec. 23—(AP)—A special courier from Russia arrived here Christmas Eve with the most appropriate gift ever received by the British Museum—the famous Codex Sinaiticus.

The Codex, one of the earliest known manuscript portions of the Bible, has been bought for $500,000 from the Soviet government. It will be put on public view in the museum.

STORY OF REMOVAL

Toronto, Dec. 23—(AP)—A Toronto Professor of Archaeology reveals an amazing story of the theft 80 years ago from an obscure Turkish monastery of the "Codex Sinaiticus," which has been sold by the Soviet government to Great Britain for $500,000.

Professor C. T. Curdell, director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Archaeology, visited the monastery, near the sacred Mount of the Law in Sinai, Turkish territory, and got the story from monks there.

A Russian Bible student named Tishendorf, according to the tale told to Professor Curdell, was given shelter at the monastery in the early 1850's. There he discovered the copy of the scriptures (consisting of a large part of the Old Testament and the Epistles of Barnabas, written in Greek).

The monks in those days, said the Professor, were allowed no fires to warm them in winter because "the wood of the neighborhood was poisonous and would kill them if they burned it."

Tricked Monk
Tishendorf complained of the cold at the monastery and asked if he could take the book to Suez, where he could copy it in the home of the Russian Consul there. The monks agreed, and assigned one of their number to accompany the Russian.

"When they arrived at the Russian Consul's," said Professor Curdell, "Tishendorf seized the book, stepped across the doorway and declared to the monk: 'I am now on Russian soil. You can do nothing.' The monk was forced to return to the monastery to tell the fate of the Codex Sinaiticus."

Professor Curdell said the head of the monastery, a bishop, took the matter up diplomatically with the Russian government. And when it was settled, "The czar made a present of 50,000 pounds ($250,000) to the Turkish authorities and the Bishop was made an Archbishop."

He said the monastery and its library still exist, and not a book has been added to the library since the Norman conquest.

DeKalb Man Candidate for Representative

H. M. Stewart of DeKalb, until recently the senior member of the printing firm of Stewart & Hamnerich of that city announces that he will be a candidate on the Republican ticket for this, the 35th District. The district includes the counties of Lee, Whiteside and DeKalb.

Mr. Stewart is well-known throughout his home county, being an active and vigorous member of the county Board of Supervisors.

At the time of the World War he was attending college. His college work was interrupted at his home by his services to his country. Enlisting in the U. S. Navy, he served with one of the bombing squadrons.

In announcing that he will be a candidate for the office of State Representative, he states that while his platform is brief it covers several vital points.

He will work faithfully for a reduction of taxes and ever-increasing expenditures. He will also devote his energies to securing the necessary amendments to our state constitution in order that our present tax system may be completely revised with a view to reducing taxes on real estate. Mr. Stewart also pledges to work for the aid of agriculture, believing that an improvement in this field will lend speedy improvement to our economic ills.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Carols Singers

The Young People's Society of the Presbyterian church to the number of about twenty-five under the leadership of Rev. C. P. Blekking and Miss Esther Dizmang spent Wednesday evening singing Christmas carols at fifteen or more homes in the village. At several of the homes they were invited into the house, where Rev. Blekking read the Christmas story from the Bible and offered prayer, after which Miss Dizmang led the young people in singing several of the carols. Word fail to express our sincere appreciation to these splendid young people and their leaders in bringing to our home this lovely Christmas cheer and no doubt, we express the feeling of the other homes they visited.

Remember the Library

If you have not already renewed your membership, don't fail to do so. If you are not a member of the Library Association, now is the time to join. There are 3019 books on the shelves at present. Think of the good reading you can have this winter, and it will only cost you fifty cents for a year. Two books a week. In these trying times one needs the recreation of reading. During the past year books in circulation were 4855, with a membership of 139. There should be a town of this size be a membership of 200. Join the library, then the amusement for these long winter evenings will be solved.

Class Party

The Fir-Si class of the Methodist Sunday school taught by Miss Flora Wicker was delightfully entertained at the hospitable Durkes home on Monday evening. The guests had been informed that it was a radio party so after a short business session conducted by the president, Mrs. Evelyn Shoemaker, the broadcasting began with Mrs. Lorraine Schmucker acting as chief announcer.

The first number was the Aspiring hour, with Miss Wicker and Mrs. Marjorie Erickson, announced by Mrs. Lucille Zoeller. Several poems were given, one by Mrs. Katherine Souder and an original one by Mrs. Mayme Speck. Helen Blocher as Eddie Cantor appeared who talked and sang and played Rubinstein's violin. She was voted the most realistic and received the prize. The singing lady told of three little pigs and the "big bad wolf"; the lady being Mrs. Lorraine Schmucker. Among other headlines were the Wiener minstrel, Mrs. Aureola Spangler, Mrs. Dorothy Hatch, Mrs. Mary Gilbert, Mrs. Josephine Watson, Pearl Canode as Fannie Cavanaugh caused much merriment with her pertinent answers to her many surprising letters of inquiry from the members of the class. Then especially good was station EZRA. Miss Ethel Sheap as Uncle Ezra, and others from the station were Mrs. Evelyn Shoemaker, Mrs. Anna Wilson and Mrs. Kathryn Conlon. Lorraine Schmucker told a blood curdling bedtime story for the little folks, which left everyone shivering. The Crime Club staged a thriller; doors were battered down, windows shattered and a man shot as he sought to escape. Everyone was excited with the mysterious murder, which was announced would be made known next week. This performance was put on by Misses Blanche Lyford and Marie Schmidt.

At a late hour the hostess informed the guests that Santa Claus had called and left gifts for everyone. These were found on the beautifully decorated Christmas tree which had excited so much admiration during the evening.

RABBIT GAINS FLAVOR STEWED IN WINE

Addition of Rainwater Madeira Dispels "Gamey" Taste

By NEA Service—

Game dinners always are applauded. And rabbit is always very popular to serve, whether it be for a buffet supper of mixed guests or a stag dinner party when your husband's friends are gathered together for a typically masculine feast.

Game comes under the head of luxury if you live in the city. However, if yours is a country home and father can go a-hunting for rabbit, grouse, pheasant, venison and the like, there is almost no expense involved.

The Repeal era is a grand asset to the woman who goes in for wild game dishes. Cooking wines are an asset to almost all wild game recipes. Besides adding a distinctive flavor, wine removes any excessive "gamey" taste. Rabbit Braise Madeira is a high-sounding French term for a thoroughly American dish, namely, braised rabbit with Madeira wine.

You will need one rabbit, 3 medium carrots, 1 small turnip, 1 sprig of parsley, 1 sprig of thyme, 1-2 pint of boiling water, 2 shallots, 6 spring onions, 1 piece of celery root, 1 blade of mace, 1-2 pint of Rainwater Madeira and 1 dozen tiny foremeat balls.

Blanch and joint the wild rabbit. Dip the pieces in flour and brown in a tablespoon of melted butter. Turn it all into a sauce pan, including the 1-2 pint of water which is used to rinse out the frying pan.

Add the carefully washed and chopped vegetables, herbs and seasoning. Pour the Rainwater Madeira over the whole thing and arrange the tiny meat balls on top. Cover and stew slowly for one and one-half hours.

When you are ready to serve, arrange the vegetables in the center of a hot dish. Place the rabbit joints right on top. Serve with sauce strained over everything and accompanied by red currant jelly and mashed potatoes. The recipe will serve four.

Mrs. George Hostess to Methodist W.H.M.S. Thursday

The Women's Home Missionary society of the M. E. church met Thursday at 2:30 P. M. with Mrs. Myrtle George.

The president, Mrs. H. D. Bills, opened the meeting by asking that all unite in silent prayer while Mrs. Dodge played very softly upon the piano. All then joined in singing "Brightest and Best of the Sons of the Morning."

Mrs. E. J. Randall led the devotions, reading Matt. 2-12 and Isa. 5:6. The lesson subject for the day was "The Road Mender of Nazareth." Mrs. Randall showed the position of women before Christ's coming and what He had done to mend the road and open a new way for womanhood. After prayer, all sang the beautiful Christmas carol

"It Came Upon a Midnight Clear."

At the conclusion of a very satisfactory business meeting, Mrs. W. Hintz, program chairman introduced Mrs. L. N. Deutsch who spoke for a few moments on what the women of the world with the help of Christ have been able to do in the way of making the road of life easier and safer for travel. Christ has put up many sign posts for our lives to tell of our destination and dangers on the way. Instead of "Private, Keep Out," He says "Whosoever will may come." An important sign is "Look out for Children," an outgrowth of His command, "Suffer the little children to come unto me." Another sign, "Give all a chance" points out our duty of the less fortunate people of his world. Life at its best for one and all is the goal—"I am come that they may have life and have it more abundantly."

Mrs. Shawyer then spoke of woman's part in World peace. She said that more than 2000 years ago the Trojan women cried out against the wrongs of war.

In recent years women have taken a prominent part in movements in behalf of world peace. In 1870 Julia Ward Howe made an appeal to the "mothers of mankind" to work for peace. In 1888 the first international body of women was formed under the name of the International Council of Women. In 1915 Miss Jane Adams and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt called a convention of women out of which grew the Women's Peace Party. Ten organizations have been united in the National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War. We missionary women have a part in this work through our affiliation with the Council of Women for Home Missions which is one of the ten organizations mentioned above.

Mrs. Chas. Winebrenner gave a brief but interesting account of the contribution of women in modern times. She told how the World War had caused women to devote themselves more generally to peace work. In 1915 Miss Jane Addams presided over a Women's Peace Congress at the Hague where 1,139 women from twelve countries met to do what they could toward a settlement of difficulties. In 1919 a Woman's International League for Peace and Freedom was founded. In 1932 Dr. Mary Emma Woolley was appointed as a delegate to the World's Disarmament Conference in Geneva—being the first woman to act as an accredited delegate to a disarmament conference.

An interesting playlet entitled "There's a Song in the Air" was put on by eight members and friends of the society. This play showed that besides being active in the larger movement of world peace, Women's H. M. Society is striving to bring peace into the individual lives of girls who are strangers in our larger cities. They have built "Esther Halls" where working girls can get their room and board for one tenth of their weekly wage, thus putting a lighter load on the girls who make the smallest salaries. The life of the girls living in an Esther Hall was pictured in contrast to that lived in an ordinary cheap boarding house. In this playlet, Miss Estella Anderson acted as reader and Mrs. Ellen Peterson as Supt. of the Hall. The other parts were taken by Miss Eleanor Clayton, Mrs. Crawford Thomas, Mrs. W. Hintz, Mrs. Mathias, Mrs. Orville Smith, Mrs. Matthews and Miss Naomi Wolf.

At the conclusion of this delightful program, the ladies brought forward their gifts of food and money which will be sent to Peek Orphanage near Polo to make a happier Christmas for the children there.

The grouse's clever idea of diving into a snowdrift, and spending the night under the warm protecting blanket of snow, sometimes ends in disaster. A rain, followed by a quick change of temperature frequently seals the bird beneath the crust, and it is unable to break out.

She Ruined All Of Benny's Fun

From the casual expression of Mrs. Benny Rubin, as she appears here in Los Angeles court, you'd never guess that she'd just taken all the fun out of life for Benny, noted stage and screen comedian. But she's just been awarded $300 a month, pending trial of her divorce suit, over Benny's plaintive pleading that he's earning only $500 a week.

DIXON CAGERS
BEATEN BY TWO POINTS FRIDAY

Fell Before The Mendota
High: Lightweight
team Is Winner

BY BRADLEY MOLL

The Purple and White fives alternately changed their luck last night in the dual-conference tilt last night at Mendota. The heavies lost their game by the tight margin of 27-25, and the lights trimmed Mendota in an easy fashion by 29-11. The former combat brought the stands to their feet in the last quarter when Dixon started a miraculous recovery, turning the score more and more in their direction as the minutes went by. The final attempt to tie up the game was made by Bellows who shot just as the gun went off, Dixon although outscored in the first two quarters, managed to give Mendota the worst of the argument in the last two quarters, outscoring them 2 points in the third period and 7 in the final quarter. Tower of Mendota led the scoring with 12 points and Underwood and Rebeck were second with seven apiece. In the previous game Grove of Dixon had first with 11 points and Evans of Dixon second with 6. In both games Dixon showed a marked improvement, being slightly out-heighted in the final combat, in fact this one fact accounted for the quick gain that Mendota made in the first quarter. Several of their scoring plays worked from the tip-off, and not from superior floor work. The whole essence of Mendota's victory lay in two facts, or possibly three: superior height, gaining a comfortable margin in the first quarter, and having been given several points on technical fouls, which naturally were in order for the victory. From the angle of fouls Dixon had their fouls called on the defensive in the first quarter, and this probably accounted for some of Mendota's fast tip off plays. Dixon in both games had made an improvement in their free-throws, which helped them in their final scoring. To this logic Coach Sharpe had drilled the boys and they came through in much better style than last week in their game with Rock Falls. The incentive for the local boys was furnished by a record following from Dixon, which not only equalled the Mendota contingent, but also outplayed them, in spite of the fact that the Mendota high school band was in attendance.

Dixon, in other words has got a good, steady team, and shows well the drilling Coach Sharpe has given it, and the Dixon boys as well as Mr. Sharpe are looking forward to the next Mendota game at Dixon with more or less anticipation.

The opening of the major event looked quite promising for Dixon in the light of the previous encounter and no doubt the justification was partially well founded. However, the score by quarters reveals something entirely different: Mendota 11, Dixon 4 at the end of the first quarter; Mendota 21, Dixon 2 at the end of the second quarter; Mendota 26, Dixon 15 at the end of the third quarter. The results of the game conflicted in the final analysis, and the two official scores coincided and this is the verdict:

LITTLE AMERICA
AVIATION and EXPLORATION

LITTLE AMERICA ANTARCTICA
With Byrd at the South Pole
by C.A. Able Jr. President
U.S.N.A.

Fire!—Our First Adventure

ON BOARD THE BYRD FLAGSHIP, JACOB RUPPERT:—Here we are still at Bayonne and we've just had the first thrill of the Expedition. After breakfast, a long day of back-breaking labor, but excellent meals at lunchtime and at dinner brought a lot. If I could only get some sleep, if I don't soon there will be nothing left of me to take to the South Pole.

It is 10 o'clock at night—gee, it's Friday, the 13th!—A loud explosion. Shouting from the dock. A sudden red glare in the sky. Our ship is illuminated as if by a gigantic red search-light.

Dead silence on our ship for a few minutes. Then a shouting of orders. An oil tanker is on fire two docks away. We are in terrible danger because our holds and tanks are bulging Arthur Abele, Jr. with oil, gasoline and high explosives. If the fire is not controlled immediately the whole Expedition may be wiped out. I've only been aboard the Jacob Ruppert 20 hours and here is one of the greatest thrills of my life.

A breathless wait on our ship. The distant clanging of fire engines. A gradual darkening of the ruddy glare. The situation is under control. Two men are dead from burns in the original explosion. Grim reality only a stone's throw away from us. This is no tea-party we are setting out on.

All day equipment and supplies of all kinds have been pouring over the side of our vessel. Here, for example, is a list of the automotive equipment for which I am the fuel engineer and all details of which I have to learn before we get to Little America:—a 1400 horsepower Curtiss-Condor airplane with a wingspread of 82 feet; a 700 horsepower Pilgrim airplane; a 600 horsepower General airplane; a Kellett auto-gyro airplane; a Cleveland tractor; 2 French Citroen tractors; 2 Ford snowmobiles with caterpillar treads at the rear and metal skis at the front.

I shan't know for months how many of you people of high school age or over have joined the Little America Aviation and Exploration Club, through which Admiral Byrd hopes to build up a tremendous interest in American aviation among the young people of the land. I hope it is in the thousands, because the club members and I are going to have some exciting times together and later I am going to send each of them a detailed map on which he or she can keep a daily record of our journeys and flights of exploration and other scientific significance while we are down at the bottom of the world. If you haven't joined yet, now is as good a time as any. There are no obligations whatever. All you have to do is send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a note saying you want to join the club. Send it in my name to the New York headquarters of the Little America Aviation and Exploration Club, at the Hotel Lexington, 45th Street and Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y., and the membership card will be sent you immediately and later the map and, perhaps, other communications.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DAVID BANNISTER undertakes to find out who killed TRACY KING, orchestra leader. Bannister is an author and former newspaper man. His work on the murder case with GAINIE, star reporter on the Post.
Among those suspected are JULIET FRANCE, blond, pretty and known to have visited King shortly before his death; HERMAN SCRIELACH who wrote King a threatening letter; and JOE FARROTT, down-and-out vaudeville actor. It is also known that MELVINA HOLLISTER, middle-aged spinster, had quarreled with King recently.
AL DRUGAN, friend of King's, is found dead in a wrecked automobile.
Bannister persuades the police chief to let Juliet come to his aunt's home occasionally as a guest, on the theory that if the girl believes herself free they can learn more about her.
Juliet begs Bannister to "stop trying to find out who killed Tracy King" and to "leave her alone." Melvina Hollister is found dead. Bannister rushes to the hotel where she was strangled. Matthew Hollister is hysterical and demands that the police protect him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXIX
BANNISTER paused to buy a paper from a newsboy, glanced at the headlines, and then went on with the newspaper tucked under his arm. Buying the newspaper had been a matter of habit. Already he knew the facts those columns contained—all that the police had learned, or been willing to disclose, about the death of Melvina Hollister.

Those facts were meager enough. The finger print experts had been unable to add anything at all to the solution of the mystery. The only prints in the apartment clear enough to be read were those of Miss Hollister herself and her brother.

Servants and tenants of the hotel had been questioned about events the afternoon before. No one could recall seeing anyone suspicious there. Mrs. Russell Kennebec, who lived across the hall from the Hollisters, had reported hearing voices, one of which she thought was Miss Hollister's, some time during the afternoon. Investigation had disclosed that between 3 and 3:30 a boy had delivered laundry at the apartment. The boy, whose name was John Gregory, told police he had brought the laundry, as he always did each week. He said Miss Hollister had checked over the list to be sure everything had been returned, paid him and added (as she often had) that the price of laundry was "highway robbery." So far as could be learned, this boy was the last person to see Melvina Hollister alive.

Efforts were being made to trace the ownership of the silk scarf with which Miss Hollister had been strangled. There was a photograph of the scarf on the front page of the newspaper. It was a black scarf with narrow white stripes, grouped together at intervals of an inch or more. The scarf appeared to be an old one. There was no mark of any sort on it.

The time of Miss Hollister's death had been set indefinitely as "between three and five o'clock." Nothing had been taken from the apartment, eliminating the possibility that robbery could have been the motive for the crime.

THOSE were the facts. Bannister was puzzling over them, as he had been for several hours, when he heard his name spoken. He looked up and saw a woman coming toward him.

"David—David Bannister!" she said, "You haven't forgotten me, have you?"

"Why, of course not, Mrs. Harbor. How do you do?"

The woman was short and rather stout. She wore a long coat of brown fur and a brown hat. The hat was tilted slightly, showing the hair beneath to be quite gray.

"Oh, I'm as well as usual," she said. "This time of the year I always have trouble with my rheumatism. How's your aunt?"

"Never better," he assured her. "That's fine. Tell her I'm coming over to see her some afternoon." Mrs. Harbor was an old friend of Mrs. Hewlett's. For years they had lived side by side and then the Harbor family had moved to another part of town. Robert Harbor was one of the town's most successful lawyers.

They stood for a few minutes talking casually. Then Mrs. Harbor brought up the subject about which the whole town was buzzing.

"That was such a terrible thing that happened last night!" she said. "Simply terrible! You see I've known Melvina Hollister since she was a girl. I just couldn't believe it when I read about it."

"It was a horrible crime," Bannister agreed, "and apparently the whole thing's a complete mystery. The police don't seem to have been able to find out much."

"I just can't imagine who could do such a thing!" the woman went on. "Poor Melvina! I don't believe I've seen her a dozen times in the past two years, even though we used to be friends. Now and then I'd meet her shopping and she generally went to church on Sundays. She and her brother, My, it must have been a terrible shock for him!"

"Do you know him?" Bannister asked.

Mrs. Harbor nodded. "We were in the same class in grade school," she said. "Melvina was in the class above. I don't see how Melvina will be able to get along now that he's left alone. I'm so sorry for him!"

"I saw him yesterday. He seemed pretty badly broken up."

"I should think he would be. All these years since their father and mother died he and Melvina have lived alone. Of course he'll have the money now—"

SOMETHING in the woman's tone roused Bannister's interest. "The money?" he repeated.

"Oh, yes. The Hollisters were wealthy, you know. Ezra Hollister made a fortune in real estate years ago. But he died a queer thing before he died. Melvina had stayed home and kept house for her father ever since her mother's death. She was just a girl then. And when Ezra died he left his money to Melvina and Matthew, but it was in some way so that it couldn't be divided and Melvina was to have the managing of it. You see she was older than Matthew and her father always said she had twice the head for business her brother had."

"For some reason Matthew never got on very well with his father. Old Ezra Hollister was more like Melvina—quick to say what was on his mind, sort of hot-headed. Matthew was more easy going and good natured. The money was all invested. I guess Matthew never did like business much. Anyhow, for the past ten years or so he hasn't worked at anything. He and Bannister remembered the afternoon he had encountered Hollister down town. He remembered how the bent shouldered little man had looked at the amber beverage in his glass and said, "I don't drink beer often. Melvina doesn't like it." The 10-cent glass of beer had seemed a rare treat. Bannister remembered that Hollister had said, "I had the radio turned on and the Saxophone Sizzlers were playing. I only listen to the Sizzlers when Melvina isn't there—"

And then his mind flashed back to the Matthew Hollister he had seen last night—a Matthew frightened and shaken, looking years older, who had exclaimed, "I'm all alone now. I'm the only one left!" They had been walking as they talked and had reached the street corner. Mrs. Harbor said, "There's my car coming! Goodbye, David. Be sure to tell your aunt I'm coming to see her—"

She was gone then with a wave of her hand and a smile over her shoulder.

Bannister walked on, head down. Half an hour later, at central headquarters, he followed Captain McNeal into his private office.

McNeal said, "If these newspapers would only lay off for a while it would help. What's Paxton want to jump on us now for? We're doing all we can, aren't we? A man can't do more than that!"

"Paxton thinks you ought to find out who killed Tracy King. He wants to know if Drugan's death was an accident or not. This thing last night—the second murder at the Shelby Arms in two weeks—makes it a lot worse."

"You don't need to tell me that!" Bannister seated himself on the edge of the desk. "There's something you can tell me," he said. "Are you still convinced gangsters are back of all this?"

McNeal said slowly, "I don't know. Finding that woman last night shoots all my theories to hell! If it was a gang mix-up how could she possibly be in it? How could—"

The telephone rang sharply then and McNeal answered. A moment later he announced, "That was the Chief. I've got to go see what he wants."

Bannister arose and followed him out into the hall. He slipped his hand into his coat pocket, felt something there and drew it out. It was the letter he had forgotten to open the night before.
